Workshops

Circular Economy: social development.

Promoting dialogue with youth on peace and human rights

This roundtable will address the strong connection between economics and social development, and it will analyse how integration contributes to progress of human and labour development. Dialogue and exchange are synonymous with receptivity and foster social growth.

Green Corridor: economic development.

Affirming dignity and common rights in the workplace

This roundtable will discuss the link between economic growth and respect for workers' rights and dignity. The core of the debate will be the necessity of common international rules to ensure dignity in the workplace and to counter exploitation and non-contractual employment.

Politics, the Art of Governing: institutional education.

Developing an international common education in civics and economics

This roundtable will promote the study of institutional roles in order to understand their actions and decisions and to redesign the educational system in a way that favors the autonomy of the individuals and encourages exchange of ideas within the community.

Young people are encouraged to embrace the universal declaration of human rights, and to become ambassadors and key actors in its dissemination and implementation.

Humanitarian Corridors: urban regeneration.

Changing environmental and urban systems

This roundtable will address urban social innovation, as a way to ease interactions among neighbours and the connection and inclusion of the needs of all citizens. New forms of housing will be discussed along with the revaluation of urban spaces.
